AMERICA'S TACTICS.

WERE BRITISH GUNSBOYS DECEIVED?
R. B. Cunningham Graham has the following letter in the "St. James' Gazette":
It has been pointed out to me that you stated that my information concerning the decision of English gunners to Admiral Dewey's fleet needed confirmation. I distinctly stated to your representative that I was unable to give the name of my informant, but I am prepared to do so should an inquiry be addressed into the matter. It is quite evident from the recent Court-Martial in which a British seaman was dismissed the navy and sentenced to 18 months imprisonment for negotiating the sale of a signal-book, that some foreign Power or other not friendly to us has been endeavoring to treacherously get possession of information which would enable it to damage our fleet.
There are at present two Powers to whom such a signal-book could be of immediate value. These are Spain and America. The way in which Spain has conducted the war, and the absolute want of method she has shown in all her proceedings, preclude the idea that it could have been Spain. There only remains the United States of North America. Now, in my interview I set forth six occasions on which that Power has shown herself unfriendly to Great Britain.
Hitherto my statements have been unchallenged. I argue that it was impossible for a home-made alliance could ever be concluded between this country and the United States of North America. Should it prove to have been the latter Power which has tried to "convey" our signal-book, it surely adds another count to the long series of unfriendly actions on the part of America against this country.

PROTECTING CANADIAN GOODS.

The issue of the Adelaide (South Australia) Advertiser for June 14th, just received gives the particulars of a trial which took place even in that far country the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. is as active in defending its rights and protecting the public against the substitution of cheap and counterfeit articles as it is here at home in Canada. In the trial in question Frank Ashley and William Smith were charged with having offered a substitute for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, claiming that the substitute was the same as that justly celebrated medicine. Both men were placed under arrest on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences and conspiring to defraud the public, and evidence was given by the Chief Justice of the Criminal Court. The defendants' lawyer made a strong fight in their behalf, but in spite of this the jury returned a verdict of guilty in both cases. The Chief Justice deferred sentence until the close of the sittings. In answer to the charge of conspiracy, the learned judge spoke very strongly concerning the evils of substitution and the dangers to the victim that may ensue from this nefarious and too common practice. -Toronto Globe.

DEATH OF ARCHBISHOP WALSH.

Toronto, July 31-Archbishop Walsh died tonight very suddenly. He had been confined to his room for a few days from the effects of a recent accident, but the consequences were anticipated until ten o'clock to-night. He had been chatting with Mr. Eugene O'Shea, Chief Justice of the Court, when symptoms of heart failure became evident. Dr. Dwyer, of St. Michael's Hospital, was hastily summoned.
The Archbishop, however, rapidly sank and expired at twenty minutes to eleven o'clock in the presence of Dr. Dwyer, Dr. O'Keefe, and Father Walsh, his secretary.
When he realized death was near Archbishop Walsh asked for the last rites of the Church, and nominated Vicar-General McCann as administrator of the diocese.
Archbishop Walsh was born May 23, 1830, in the parish of Monaghan, county Kilkenny, Ireland, and was educated at St. John's College, Waterford, and the Grand Seminary, Montreal, he having come to Canada in April, 1852.
He received the tonsure from Bishop Larocque in 1853 and minor orders from Bishop Macdonell, Oshawa, where he was also the first resident pastor, and endured much hardship. In 1857 he was appointed to the charge of St. Mary's parish, Toronto, and in 1859 was promoted to the rectory of St. Michael's cathedral, being further promoted to the bishopric of the diocese in 1882. He visited Rome in 1891, and was received with marked attention by the Pope.
In 1892 Mrs. Walsh succeeded Bishop Pius as Bishop of Sandwich, subsequently removing the episcopal see to the city of London, the title of the see being changed accordingly. He did much important work in this diocese in the way of building churches, organizing as the natural successor to Archbishop Lynch in the archdiocese of Toronto and was appointed in August of that year, the installation taking place in St. Michael's cathedral on November 27.
Archbishop Walsh took no public part in the Manitoba school question and on most subjects adopted a cautious and conservative position.

The date for taking the plebiscite on the prohibition question is Sept. 29.

Infant Tablets

Saves Many Babies

Mrs. Louisa Grass, Watertown, N. Y., says:
Dr. Hennequin's Tablets have worked wonders for us. I believe it was the tablets that saved our little baby, two years of age. Doctors failed to succeed, the child was a mere skeleton, would not eat, could not sleep but before one bottle of Dr. Hennequin's Tablets were taken she began to brighten up and now at four years of age, is the picture of health.
Mrs. John Minardus, Bay City, Mich., says:
It is a pleasure to me to say that I believe Dr. Hennequin's Tablets is undoubtedly the finest medicine for children I have ever seen; as a worm medicine it acts most beautifully. I recommend it to all mothers as being reliable and nice. I would not try to bring up a baby without them if I could procure them.

THE PLEBISCITE.

Ottawa, July 31.-Thursday, the 29th of September, is the date fixed by the Government for the vote all over the Dominion on the subject of prohibition. The question to be submitted is as follows:—"Are you in favor of the passing of an Act prohibiting the importation, manufacture, or sale of spirits, wine, ale, beer, cider, and all other alcoholic liquors for use as beverages?" All Canadians qualified to vote at provincial elections will be called upon to vote on this question. To defray the expense of the plebiscite the sum of $250,000 was appropriated at last session of Parliament. The vote of each province will call for the printing of the provincial voters lists, as intended for Federal purposes, at Ottawa. The work has, however, not yet been commenced, consequently it is more than likely that the lists as printed for provincial purposes will have to be used. A large vote should be cast, as there were 1,333,735 names on the old Federal lists. These were divided among the several provinces as follows:-

Ontario.....	630,021
Quebec.....	351,075
Nova Scotia.....	111,124
New Brunswick.....	10,997
Prince Edward Island.....	25,245
Manitoba.....	65,684
North-West Territories.....	20,478
British Columbia.....	38,000

In four of the provinces there have already been popular votes on the liquor question. These provinces are Ontario, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island. Manitoba was the first province to have a prohibition plebiscite. The voting took place there on July 29, 1892. In the following year, December 15th, 1893, Prince Edward Island voted. In 1894 Nova Scotia and Ontario went on the question. The result was as follows:-

For Prohibition.....	271,008
Against Prohibition.....	132,150
Majority for prohibition, 138,858.

over here on Monday night and companied the rain. Considerable

LEINSTER.

Aug. 22.—It is quite a time since correspondence from this place has appeared in your paper. I think perhaps harvesting and threshing have taken up the spare time allotted for this task, but for the future I hope there will be a chance of keeping the mill running.
Mrs. L. Little daughter is very low with influenza.
Service at Ebenezer, last Sunday was conducted by Mr. Dixon, of Canton, who is to be a visitor. Mr. Spence

Michael McGuinness is better.
Ab. Bruen has a fine collection of harness on hand. Anyone wanting a good set had better give him a call.
He has also a lot of fine bugles. Ab.
evidently means business.
Several of our leading young men attended a reception held at Albert on the 14th inst.

9th concession where she reopened her

ment.
We understand that the case of Basilius G. will be tried at the fall session in Belleville. The case will not be changed to Toronto. This case will cause as much excitement in local circles as the Ponton case in Napanee.
An important point in the case will be the artistic waxing of a moustache.
On this point several leading barbers
will have a contest.

James Brennan an old and respected resident of the 3rd concession died on the 14th inst. He was buried at St.
Mary's cemetery, Marysville on Friday

boys, of New York, are again indulging in the scientific sport of bass-fishing.
John and Joe still accompany them.
Mr. J. Brooks has done a good job for this weather. If his American employers do not happen to enjoy the excitement of lively bass-fishing, they may relieve the monotony while the fish are enjoying their mid-day repose,
by drawing from Berts unlimited store
of snipe.

which greatly improves its appearance.
H. Williamson of Picton made a business call here on Monday.

boxes of cheese on Monday at 8c. Our

DEATH BY POISON AT BLOOM- FIELD.

The village of Bloomfield is greatly excited over the suspicious death of a fourteen-year-old girl, Mary M. Rogers, which took place on July 26th at the home of her brother-in-law, George Althouse, a young married man living near the village. The immediate cause of her death was inflammation of the heart. Her illness only lasted about four or five days. Dr. Bowerman, of Bloomfield, the attending physician, was not satisfied that the cause was sent word to the County Crown Attorney, J. R. Brown, of Picton, to look into the matter. Mr. Brown arrived on the scene the funeral had been taken place, but the body was examined and a post-mortem examination was performed by Dr. Wright, of Bloomfield, assisted by Dr. Bowerman. Their evidence, as given before the Coroner's jury on August 1st, led to the belief that the death was caused by inflammation of the heart had been caused by blood poisoning from a criminal operation, although there had been no cause for such an operation. The inquest was resumed August 22nd when the taking of the evidence of the witnesses and others commenced. According to current talk, the relations between the brother-in-law and the dead girl for some months past had not been what they should have been. The two disappeared together on July 2nd and were never seen for ten days. They returned. Althouse said he had been to Windsor and that the girl had been visiting an aunt in Cobequid.

CANADA'S BIG DISPLAY.

RESOURCES OF THE DOMINION EXTEN-

The International Hall at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, the largest exhibit is that of the Dominion of Canada. It occupies 5,000 feet of floor space and 6,000 feet of wall space.
It is covered with the most beautiful produce. It is an agricultural, mineral,
timber and dairy exhibit combined.
The location is first-class, taking in the main entrance to the building. C.
H. Myers, commissioner for the Dominion of Canada, is in charge.
He is assisted by V. Bennett, the resident Canadian agent, and his daughter, Miss Jane Bennett. The exhibit is viewed by ninety per cent of the Exposition visitors, a vast proportion of whom are astonished by the great
showing of the country's resources.
When the exhibit is viewed, it is produced in the amount of thirty-eight to forty-five bushels per acre, all through the Dominion. It is the finest agricultural product shown. Commissioner Myers says the Dominion can supply the needs of all the nations of the world. Not only wheat, but corn, barley, rye, and all of the cereals known to the United States grow and abundantly. The corn is as large as that grown further south. The small grain has a lighter color, the berry
being more plump and larger.
The dairy business of Canada has grown with great rapidity during the past few years. Last year's shipment of butter to Great Britain aggregated 12,000,000 pounds, valued at $2,500,000.
Along with the butter goes the cheese,
which last year amounted to 105,000
cwt. valued at $15,000,000.
Honey and maple sugar are two other staple products of Canada shown in this exhibit.

The lumber industry of the Dominion has assumed great proportions since the destruction of the forests of Michigan, Wisconsin and Michigan, and much of the material used in the United States is from the country to the north. The lumber exhibit is one of the most interesting. It is a display of the numerous samples and
the character of the exhibits.
There are some oak, pine, poplar, elm, maple, white, maple, cedar, and a score of other varieties of the woods of the forest. One of the most interesting is a slab cut from a log of hard pine which is six feet square and six feet thick. It is a specimen of the lumber which the plank came measured 150 feet to the first mill. The lumber exhibit declares that there are millions of acres of pine forests in the north of the Dominion that have never been viewed by the eye of man.

A great showing of apples, pears,
plums and other fruits is also made.
In the grasses there is no end to the display. The cereals, the varieties grown in the United States, both tame and wild, and the aspen and spruce are shown in great quantities.
In the center of the court is the mineral display. Three large cases are filled with rich specimens of gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc, tin, iron and other metals from the gray sulphates
to the most beautiful and delicate of the precious stones. A number of photographs of mining scenes from British Columbia and other camps are also shown.
The entrance contains a number of comfortable seats where visitors are invited to rest themselves. A large register is open to visitors and is being rapidly filled up. The low railroad now in force make it possible for many Canadians to visit the Omaha Exposition.

EXPORT OF SAW LOGS.

THE PROTEST AGAINST ONTARIO GOVERN-MENT'S PROHIBITION NOW THE SUBJECT OF NEGOTIATIONS.

It has for some days been known that the export of the lumber industry affected by the action of the Ontario Legislature in prohibiting the export of sawlogs have been taking steps to make an international question of the matter, and that communications have been made by the Secretary of State for the Dominion of Canada, questioning the right of Ontario to take such action,
and suggesting that the legislation be included in the questions to be discussed at the conference. The paper in the case have been transmitted through the proper channels to the Attorney-General. The Dominion will reply to the Ontario government in the assertion of the exclusive right of Ontario to legislate in regard to its lumber. The matter is now the subject of correspondence and negotiation, the correspondence on the subject cannot as yet make public, but it is understood that the Dominion is in his reply argues strongly that the regulation imposed in December last has been a violation of the scope of the powers and rights of the Legislature and the Government.—Toronto

Blood Poisoning at Napanee

DR. WILSON'S WHITE WORKING AT THE
GILBERT FURNITURE FACTORY, NAPANEE.

At A.S. Morgan, of Bracebridge, Ont. writes:—While working at the
Gilbert Furniture factory, Napanee,
1891, I met with an accident, cutting my hand very deep and worked so angry that I became alarmed and went to a prominent Napanee Physician who told me that blood poisoning had set in. He bled my finger and put a poultice on it, saying, get a bottle of Douglas's Egyptian Liniment and bind
it up and keep the bandage secured
with the liniment and call again.
When I returned to the doctor's office,
the pain, swelling and swelling had all gone and when shown to the doctor he said the liniment had accomplished
the work. I would come out of it all right, although the doctor at first thought that he would have to amputate the hand. Your Egyptian Liniment certainly saved my hand and perhaps my life. I must do all I can for you.
I know of four cases of blood poisoning in this vicinity that Egyptian Liniment cured.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Province—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S.—James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Province, makes the following statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 160 pounds. Prescriptions did me no good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends that Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N.B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

ILL FATED.

This came to pass: The sky grew dark, A wondrous wind swept over the sea, And waves were tossed in a furious rage, And roared like demons in revelry. Then loud above the crashing spray, The furious bill of storm's descent, A cry rang out that shook the stars— "A man is lost, a man is lost!"

The heeling sea bore him there— Their summits capped with alienated foam, And swirling furies in the wind Forbade the ship in "stays" to come, And sailing forth in vain, The rushing waters in his ears, The man essayed to climb the rope, But vainly tried, yielding himself to death.

And there he swam alone with death, Beneath the water-slogging clime, Between the billows' mad and breath Between the billows' mad and breath, He, like one who views the east, Swept vista wide of ocean's wharves, He turned his head and for a last Heart-crank, lingered long.

A sun-kissed strand of yellow sand, A dimpling waste of adult sea, The latter raised his head's wand Disturbed the summer harmony, And from the waves and still, Unmoved, unknown, forgot, Yet once he loved the tempo's will, Creature of circumstance when—

A PHILANTHROPIST.

"Whom do you think I saw driving with Gerald this morning?" asked Mrs. Morris, her great friend, the doctor's wife, as the two ladies were enjoying a cup of tea and the general gossip of the parish together one afternoon.

"Beatrice Harcourt," Mrs. Maynard answered promptly.

"Ah, you saw her, too, then. I must say I was astonished. It is well known that young Morton bears the character of being the fastest man in the neighborhood."

"I have long ceased to be surprised at anything Beatrice Harcourt does," the other lady answered significantly. "If Mr. Kerriick does not mind, I do not see why any one else should trouble their heads about her eccentricities."

"Certainly not," Mrs. Morris agreed. "I really, Ross, she has laughing and talking in the most familiar manner, and Gerald was bending toward her until his face nearly touched hers."

"And that is our future wife's wife! Well, I shall take care my daughters do not see much of her," and Mrs. Maynard drew herself up with a kind of lofty indignation as some fresh visitors were shown into the room.

Poor Beatrice! Her numerous delinquencies were the result of many afterthoughts, and had been ever since she came to Hillchester, four years ago. She certainly was unlike other girls, for in addition to being a "blue stocking" and having taken her degree at Oxford, she had a most unusual interest in the working classes—not a mere ladylike interest, which contented itself with calling at their cottages with a few words of good advice and a track of lace, but she had a "big" or "crazy," as the good people of Hillchester called it, for their benefit on hand-lectures, concerts, etc., what not.

For the consideration of society she should not at all, she never attended of the afternoon tea, therefore she heard no gossip. She was not even particular about being in the fashion—in fact, the black dress she usually wore was looked on as an exposure to the weather, as if it had been better days.

She had been known even to take the broom off the lane old crossing sweep at the corner of the road and work away at it in earnest until there was a passage in for a queen to walk over.

And in spite of all the vicar of Hillchester had asked Beatrice Harcourt to be his wife. Well, as the leaders of society in Hillchester considered her, and the many sighs, wenders would never cease. Nevertheless it must be confessed that Rev. John Kerriick was in no very enviable frame of mind as a week later he would his way toward his ladylove slowly toward his ladylove's abode.

The gossip which had begun in Mrs. Maynard's drawing room had spread all over the parish, until a version of it, highly exaggerated and colored, had reached even the vicar's ears.

Beatrice soon discovered something was amiss, and after the first greetings were over she asked almost anxiously: "What is the matter, John? You do not look well."

"For a full minute Mr. Kerriick did not answer. Instead he looked down at her as she stood with one small hand resting upon his black coat sleeve, the sunlight falling with loving touch upon her fair hair, which was cut short (an other point which met with the disfavor of the Hillchester matrons), and curled naturally all over her head like a child's."

"Trix, it is silly perhaps, but something I have heard today has troubled me greatly."

"About me?" Trix asked, saying, "Of what fresh enormity am I the subject, John?" and a sudden gravity crept into the sweet voice. "I thought you said that you minded none of these things."

"I do not," the other replied quickly. "Indeed," gently stroking her soft, yet strong, looking hand, "I love you all the better for them; but it is better to speak out. Trix, have you been driving with Gerald Morton lately?"

The next moment Mr. Kerriick would have given much never to have asked the question, for Trix turned to him suddenly a whole world of scorn shining in her blue eyes.

"And so, John, this means that you cannot trust me, and you choose rather to believe any idle story people may tell."

"Tell me there is no truth in it, Trix," Mr. Kerriick said quietly, though his eyes had clouded with a deep look of pain beneath her implied rebuke, "and I promise you I will believe it."

But Beatrice had removed her hand, and all the sunshine had died out of her sunny face as she said wearily: "Mr. Morton has driven over to Castlefield twice this week. Is there anything else you want to ask me?"

No, there was nothing else. Mr. Kerriick felt it was almost sacrilege with those pure eyes looking into his to breathe the doubts which now seemed to him so monstrous.

It was some months later, and Beatrice Harcourt was walking swiftly along the dusty road leading to Castlefield, carrying a small basket containing some delicacies for the vicar, when she was going to see. The sound of wheels made her turn her head, and the next moment a deep, musical voice said pleasantly: "Miss Harcourt, have you the time on the same journey? Now do let me have the pleasure of giving you a lift."

Beatrice hesitated one moment; then she answered frankly: "Thank you so much. You know, Jennie, that your crippled child I told you about. Well, I have had a note from her this morning to say her mother is very ill, and there is no one to do anything for her."

Gerald Morton looked admiringly down at the fair face beside him. It was the young man of Hillchester who had given Beatrice Harcourt the name of "the fair philanthropist," and it spoke well for the girl that even in the fastest circle her name was never mentioned but with respect.

When Beatrice reached the little cottage, which lay close to a wood five miles from Hillchester, she found everything in a state of confusion. One glance at the poor woman showed her that a high fever had seized her, and she lay delirious, while an ominous crimson rash was beginning to make its appearance on her face and neck.

"Why, Jennie, your mother has the fever!" Beatrice exclaimed rapidly. "Haven't you sent for a doctor, child?"

"And is there no neighbor who would come and help to nurse her?"

I wrote to the doctor, miss, when I sent your note, but he has not been here yet, and as to neighbors, miss, there are none for a mile or more."

All the morning Beatrice waited, doing all she could for the poor sick woman, and the afternoon was well on its way when the welcome rattle, which surely told of the doctor's appearance, sounded at the door.

Beatrice literally flew to open it and found the afternoon was well on its way when the welcome rattle, which surely told of the doctor's appearance, sounded at the door.

For the last month, ever since the gossip about Gerald Morton—in fact, matters had been rather strained between the vicar and his fiancée, but all was forgotten now, and the doctor, of the moment Beatrice exclaimed: "You must not come in here, John, or touch me. Mrs. Carr has the fever!"

For a moment a look of keen anxiety darkened his grave eyes, and the next Mr. Kerriick had folded the slight form close in his arms as he murmured brokenly, "Trix, my own brave darling, would you have me a greater coward than I am?"

With his arms still about her she told him how Gerald Morton had driven her to the cottage in the morning, adding, "It was well he did, for I should have been an hour later, and Jennie and her mother were quite ill."

"Trix, will you forgive me for letting that horrid scandal trouble me even for one moment. Dear heart, I feel I shall never forgive myself!"

"Yes, I will forgive you," Trix answered, saying, "I had shadowed you from her honest eyes, 'only you must never do it again, as the children say.'"

A fortnight later all Hillchester was thrown into a state of dire commotion by the news that Beatrice Harcourt had died of scarlet fever, and moreover, so dangerously ill that the local doctor almost despaired of her life.

It happened during one of the worst days of the epidemic, that Mrs. Morris and her friend, Mrs. Maynard, were walking by the drive gate leading to Beatrice's home. To their astonishment they saw a large crowd of people waiting just outside the door—women with babies in their arms, who had stolen a few minutes out of their dinner hour, even one or two tall youths and laboring men.

In a moment the door opened, and a maid came out with a pale, anxious face. Evidently it was good news, for with one accord they slowly and silently turned to go away, and as they passed the two ladies one exclaimed, in a broken voice, which showed tears were not far off: "Ah, well, if we lose her, our best friend is gone, and that's certain. There ain't many in this world like our Miss Beatrice."

Bless her sweet face! Mrs. Maynard and Mrs. Morris walked on in silence. The lesson was learned, though it was bitter, for each felt, "What would these people have cared for, even in Beatrice Harcourt's place?" But Beatrice, dangerous as her illness was, did not die, and six months later Hillchester was the scene of a greater rejoicing than had been known for a long year, while the wonderful array of new and various devices, the glad faces of the people, the children with their flower laden baskets and the church bells ringing out their sweet messages far and wide all combined to show the love and respect which their vicar and his bride had so deservedly gained in the hearts of their people—Madame.

Mortality in War.

The question of the possible mortality among those engaged in military operations is one of great interest, just now to insurance companies in America, and efforts have been made to learn the proportion of the losses to the total number of troops in the American civil war. It is supposed of the various estimates (reduced to a three year's basis) is estimated at 2,820,272, and that the mortality is summed up as follows: Killed and died of wounds, 110,070, or 4.7 per cent; died of disease, 224,586, or 9.7 per cent; died from accident and all other causes, 24,782, or 1.1 per cent; total, 359,438, or 15.5 per cent of the three years' term. Thus the average death rate per year among those enlisted works out roughly at 62 per 1,000—Hospital.

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,
GENTLEMEN—Having been given out of all hope of recovery, the best doctors of the United States, I came to Canada last autumn terribly ill, and had read all hope. Suffering agonies from inflammation of the bowels, I was strongly urged to use Paine's Celery Compound. I gave it a trial as recommended, and the first bottle did me so much good I continued with the medicine until I had used seven bottles, when I found myself perfectly cured. Indeed, I never felt better in my life than at present.

It is possible means to tell others of Paine's Celery Compound, and will always recommend it to those troubled with rheumatism.

"You never heard about the time that Judge Egan gave that prime of birds, did you?" asked a new party at a natural history, I suppose?" said M. W. Fitzgerald to the Philistine.

"Well, a couple of years ago Judge Egan and Tom Conroy went over to hunt together. 'What'll you give me?' asked the judge."

"It's Friday," said Tom. "Give me some fish."

A young German engineer whose name is Herr "Underwear," had an amusing incident happen to him on a recent ocean voyage which will bear repeating and which he narrates himself with much gusto. On the steamer several English ladies who were devoted to whist and who frequently called upon Herr X. to join them in a friendly rubber. The young man does not care particularly to play whist, but as the ladies in question had several charming girls under their wings, policy as well as politeness made him join in the daily games. The whist was not very brilliant, severe cold, and in order to protect himself from the "rafts, cold ocean to wear a couple of heavy bicycle overalls in addition to his ordinary clothing."

The ladies sympathized and frequently spoke to Herr X. "Underwear," as they pronounced it, about his peculiar costume. He was not particularly well received in England, and the pronunciation of his name puzzled him very much—in fact, he thought they were referring to his sweaters. He said to himself: "Ladies, why do you call me Mr. Underwear? It is because of these sweaters." The reply was lost to posterity in the roar of laughter which caused the windows of the saloon to rattle—Philadelphia Record.

Metalizing Wood.

A method of metalizing wood, one by which it becomes very solid and resistant and assumes the appearance of a true metallic mirror, is described in the U. S. patent of Mr. J. H. Brice, of Bridgeport, Conn., which was granted recently. The wood is first immersed for three or four days, as may be its degree of permeability, in a caustic alkaline lye, and thence passed immediately into a bath of hydrofluoric acid, and then into a bath of sulphuric acid, in which it is soaked for 24 or 36 hours, concentrated solution of sulphur in caustic potash. The duration of this bath is about 48 hours, and its temperature is from 65 to 70 degrees. Finally the wood is immersed for 30 or 40 hours in a hot solution of acetate of lead. The wood prepared in this manner and after having undergone a proper drying at a moderate temperature, is covered under a burner of hard wood a polished surface and exhibits a very brilliant metallic lustre—a lustre still further increased in its attractiveness if the surface of the wood be rubbed thoroughly, in the first place, with a piece of lead, tin or zinc and afterward be polished with a glass or porcelain tumbler.

"But," he smiled his wonted smile, "I have never felt inclined to kiss the rind that I do now."

Said to say, Mrs. Birch did not see the point and told her husband his excellency had insulted her.—Exchange.

Opals.

An exquisite gem is the opal, its beautiful creamy surface lit with red, blue and yellow rays scintillating in the light and giving it a place in the front rank of precious stones. Unfortunately the opal has a bad name, and we know the proverb about the dog with the unlucky cognomen. Superstition credits this beautiful stone with bringing misfortune to its possessor, and many a woman will win its way so long as the world lasts. The opal is peculiarly brittle and sometimes crumbles away without any apparent cause, therefore it has been branded "unlucky." But as those laugh who are afraid of the stone, who value opals for their worth and beauty and who can afford to make merry at the superstitions. The opal is the type of hope.—Chicago News.

Later I heard of Milburn's Heart & Nerve Pills, and bought two boxes. Before I started using them I could not do my house work and gave myself up to bed, as I thought it would never be cured. Minnie dashed forward and waved her sister's hand and told him what she had done. Mr. Widdell at once started for the house, accompanied by the girl. On his arrival he found that the girl's story was only too true. Susan Sexton was lying on the floor dead.

Minnie was at one time incarcerated in an asylum for the insane, and it has been noticed for some time past that she was acting rather strangely. No particular attention was paid to the fact, however, as the girl was believed to be harmless. The mad woman was about 33 years old, and had been married shortly before. Minnie, however, was violently opposed to her sister's marriage, and had been heard to declare that she would shoot her sister to death. Minnie is now in charge of the police.

COULD NOT BELIEVE IT.

Compelled to Do the Deed by an Uncontrollable Impulse.

Newmarket, Aug. 23.—"I could not help it; I was compelled to do it by some impulse," remarked the murderous culprit, who told some of the neighbors of the dreadful tragedy.

While the two girls were engaged in their household avocations, Minnie and Susan were in the kitchen, and ran upstairs where she secured a revolver that was kept in the house. Returning to the kitchen, she placed the revolver on her sister's back and pulled the trigger. Susan fell back on the floor, when Minnie deliberately fired three shots into her breast, killing her instantly. The girl, who died was committed, she placed the revolver on the kitchen table, walked composedly to the office of Mr. W. Widdell, the police, and told him what she had done. She laughed while explaining how she shot her sister, and did not in any way seem to realize the terrible position in which she was placed.

The Love of the Sister.

It is said that the love of the two girls for each other was touching, they being very seldom apart if they could help it. Minnie, who was very fond of her sister, was particularly passionately fond of her sister, and would hardly let her out of her sight, following her wherever she went, and she was very jealous of her.

Minnie, however, was known to be so strong mentally, and about three years ago was placed in the Toronto Asylum for the insane, where she remained for three months. She was discharged as cured, and while she had never since shown any signs of violence, still it was said that at times her mind appeared to be wandering. The jealousy of her sister that rankled in her mind until it ended in murder was noticed, however, by the police, and she was kept under close watch.

Minnie objected to this and it was the cause of many a hot quarrel between the two girls. Minnie was very fond of her sister, and she was very jealous of her. She was very fond of her sister, and she was very jealous of her.

When the late Mr. Sexton died he left the two girls $10,000 each, and he was a mutual arrangement that whoever died first should leave the money to the other. It is reported that Minnie brooded over the thought that this money would be hers, and that she would have it all.

the family in case her sister died, and that this may have led her to commit the crime.

The sisters are daughters of J. B. Sexton, an old and well-known resident of Newmarket, who for many years carried on the business of jewelry. He died September 25, 1896, leaving a will dated December 3, 1892. There were two Mrs. Sextons; the first died many years ago, and the second was a widow. She was a widow, and she was a widow.

There was a boy in the family, named Fred Sexton, but he is not named in the will. County Constable Savage arrested the sister, who died the above, and has her under close surveillance.

An Inquest To-Day.

An inquest will be held to-day at 10 o'clock before Coroner Scott. Mr. Hailey of the County Crown Attorney's office will conduct it for the Crown.

Took Gas To Die.

Toronto, Aug. 23.—James Stevenson, a man who had been in the hospital for some time, died yesterday morning. He was found by his father's workshop. The coroner's jury pointed to the fact that the man had deliberately committed suicide by inhaling gas. He was 41 years of age and unmarried. He has lately been brooding over an order issued by Magistrate Denison, who had ordered him to leave his home, and a certain amount towards the maintenance of an illegitimate child. Coroner Young decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Both Had Marksmanship.

Amherst, Aug. 23.—Robert Haver, a liverman, was told by a burglar that he was to be silent and give up his money. Haver quickly reached for his revolver, but the burglar, who was armed with a knife, shot him in the back. Haver was killed, but the burglar was not.
